GUEST BIO

Dr. Brandon Quarles is a music-maker and teacher who thrives on cross-genre collaborations. A native of Ringgold, Georgia, Dr. Quarles is the Assistant Professor of Saxophone at the University of Georgia's Hugh Hodgson School of Music. Dr. Quarles was previously the Lecturer of Saxophone and Allied Areas at UGA where in addition to teaching saxophone, he directed and conducted the Contemporary Chamber Ensemble, taught a local music history course "Music in Athens," and taught a professional development course "Music in the Real album of original songs titled All My Ghosts in 2023. All My Ghosts was produced by artist and producer Annie Leeth (who in addition to her own work is a member of Faye Webster's touring band) and recorded over the course of 2022 and 2023. Flaggpole's Gordon Lamb praised All My Ghosts for its "incredibly creative arrangements," and said that the album "has a simmering quality that leaves the listener satisfied but wanting more anyway." In 2022, Dr. Quarles synthesized his classical and popular music experiences in collaborations with the Athens Hip Hop Harmonic, working with artists Convict Julie, Linqua Franqa,
